NB. if you find the flower centres tricky to cut, you can just cut them as circles, or even use a hole punch.

Assemble the flowers first. Gently bend the petals and stamens to give body.

Glue the grey layer on top of the black layer (the black layer is slightly larger so there will be a tiny border).

Next glue the white layer on top.

Then glue the yellow layer on top. The right-hand side edge will line up with the previous layers, the belly will overlap.

Next glue on the dark blue layer it should fit next to the yellow layer like a jigsaw.

Then glue the sage green layer on top of the dark blue layer.

Next add the mid blue wing. The cut out should line up with the cut out below to allow the white to show through.

To complete the bird add the light teal top wing and cap.

Place glue on the branches where the bird will overlap. And add a tiny dot of glue to the back of tail and feet.

Next glue the flowers around the edge of the circular 'branch'.

Once the glue is dry you can add string or thin ribbon to the hanger and hang it up.
